

Together we Ride Solution

Puzzle: Arjun Rajan, Kristy Chang, Vinjai Vale

Solution: Arjun Rajan

Answer: BLOODTHIRSTY

To solve this puzzle you should first solve the Meta 4 puzzle using the solutions to the other puzzles in this meta and then proceed to backsolve this puzzle...

To actually solve this puzzle, you should notice the following things:

1. The title of the puzzle is the name of a very popular Fire Emblem song. If you listen to the video, you will find that one of the sections we play is this exact song. This should help you to notice that all the songs are Fire Emblem songs.
2. If you listen to the percussionist, you will notice he normally plays two types of notes, short and long. This should make you think he's playing some kind of code, specifically morse code.
3. You should get two ideas from the flavor text in the video description: that the songs are out of tune and that the spacing is incorrect in the morse code.
4. There are numbers on the blackboard that keep changing. Once you've learned the identified a few of the songs, you can quickly realize that these numbers correspond which game in the series the song comes from.

With all this in mind, you can start trying to fill in the attached PDF to the puzzle. The blanks in the PDF correspond to the letters that come from the morse code played by the percussionist. The words the percussionist is playing in morse code correspond to the titles of the songs that are played.

Once you have the morse code clue, if you google the clue along with fire emblem and the game number, you will get the actual song. You could also have discovered the actual song by narrowing down your choices once you have just a section of the morse code and the game number and by listening to some of the music (this will considerably help with solving the entire morse code clue).

Comparing the actual song to the part we played, you should notice it is tune shifted. By finding the number of half-steps the song is shifted by and indexing the morse code by that number, you will get a letter. The twelve letters spell: BLOODTHIRSTY which is the answer to the puzzle.
