

Game Time

Don't get bored...

1. Sometimes life gives you lemons, other times it sends you luck. After I got my paycheck, I started going to the gym, had a lovely portrait painted of my family, switched jobs with a friend of mine, bought a car, got a tax rebate and got paid again!
2. The Piscataqua River is very busy today. I am patrolling the port. There is a very big ship heading south to the naval yard for repairs, and the captain must see to it that he doesn't crash or block the harbor. There is a submarine heading east, but it will stay above the surface before it gets to the open ocean. A cruiser full of spouses arriving on H-4 visas is heading east. I am heading east, in the middle of a lot of commotion.
3. After I finished dancing, I walked to the hall to see if our guests had arrived, but they hadn't, so I looked in the lounge for my purple-clad friend. He wasn't there either. Hmm. I needed a hint. Just then, I heard our guests arrive, so I returned to the hall to welcome them in, and took their coats, which I lay on the main staircase. Then we all sat down for dinner.
4. There are two of us. I am worth four points. Oh? You want to hear about my neighbors? There is a family of twelve, each worth one point, and a family of three, each worth two points. That said, sometimes we settle in nicer areas. When the property value of where I live goes up, so does my net worth.
5. These people are not very good at this.
6. Animals and construction are an ill-advised combination. I climbed from 2 to 38, and again scaled from 39 to 63, but then I slid from 64 to 45, then from 46 to 24, and finally from 25 to 6.
7. Things sure are sweet here in 1949. There are colorful mountains to the north, and red and white striped sticks to the south. I have to backtrack, toward the forest, until I come to the hearts again.
8. I'm gonna take my horse to the tile floor... I jump west-northwest, north-northeast, east-southeast, and south-southwest. Oh look, I'm back where I started!
9. Think outside the box, which weighs one decagram. Mid-tri pointing east. Then Wonky-quad north of that. Mini-tri north of that, pointing northeast. Mega-tri north of that, pointing southwest. Other Mega-tri southeast of that, pointing northeast. Proper-quad north of that. Other Mini-tri north of that, pointing southeast.

10. I had to backtrack again. After I nearly had a run-in with the police, I passed through some gardens and a parking lot, and paid my electric bill. I was almost all the way back to the shoreline boardwalk when I at last found the 200 dollars I had dropped.

11. My apologies, this journey is not nearly as interesting as I'd hoped. From where I started, I just traveled along the track, past other competitors, some of whom were being told to start over. I slid a few times on icy patches, but I just kept going and eventually made it to the safe zone.

12. After a long day looking at rocks, I have to get to the store so I can buy myself a nice cold cola. I'm in the desert, three miles west of a long, straight road, and the gas station is ten miles due north from where I am. If I can travel fifty miles per hour on the road and thirty miles per hour in the desert, what's the fastest way to get there?

13. Plan: Chet will say "REVI" or else he will stay still in the lower left. Not to be confused with Arthur Fellig.
